

JUST A REGULAR GUY (AND A REGULAR DAY)

BY IAN ESCAPE

“Dear followers, what a day!”

Yesterday I was with Jack, my old friend. And yes, for the ones who ask, he actually is my best friend!

We were in Times Square, one of the most famous places in the world. At 4pm that same day, we went shopping and we saw something strange, well, not something but someone. He was a man, and he was wearing black clothes and a black hat. He was tall and fit. We thought he was suspicious so we started following him and noticed he was going straight to the center bank. We literally freaked out! Moments later, the man entered the bank and pulled out a strange object out of his jacket. We tried to see that object and we realized it was a gun. We were in shock! Moments later, we called the police and when they arrived they asked where the criminal was. We immediately told them that the robber was inside the bank. They got into the bank and when they entered, everything was normal, so they asked the bank owner where the criminal was. He was very surprised because he didn't see any criminal inside the place, and just a few moments later, we saw the man and he turned out to be one of the security members of the bank!

Finally, we realized we made a big mistake, so when the police came to ask us if the security member was the criminal, we said we were very sorry for the misunderstanding and he told us we shouldn't judge a person for his appearance. We left the place and never came back!
